BUILDING FOR A BETTER TOMORROW

Concern about the environment and the renewability of our resources, with global warming and changes in our weather pattern of late is currently at the heart of the real estate and urban planning industry. The development of innovative technologies greatly affects our daily lives and offers a wealth of new possibilities. This also applies to today's buildings and those of tomorrow.

The emerging technologies for the development of energy-efficient buildings are attracting consumers and businesses to demand for green development. The trend is clear: new materials, pioneering technologies for utilizing renewable energy and the use of landscape and parks are significant innovations in construction and building technologies of recent years.

The inaugural Green Buildings & Parks World 2014 is designed to provide a platform for developers, professionals and government bodies to converge and share, learn and collaborate to improve the green buildings and parks of their countries. The areas of discussion including:

- Latest Green Certification Criteria and Scores
- Eco-building Materials
- Green Building Design Innovation
- Landscapes & Parks in Green Buildings
- Green Incentives for Developers
